

We are closely monitoring Tropical Storm Sally. With some models suggesting possible impacts to our coastal communities throughout the week, our local and home office leadership teams are working together to ensure that we are prepared for any possible scenario. Although impacts on our communities are anticipated to be minimal, we know this could change quickly and we will be ready to respond should this be the case.

At this time, we are not planning evacuations of any communities. However, should a mandatory evacuation become necessary please begin considering how you or your loved one would respond. For the sake of resident safety and comfort, it's always preferable for residents to evacuate with their families. Where that's not possible, an inland evacuation location will be identified, and residents will be provided transportation to that location where continued care will be provided by our associates.

Our community leadership teams will be in touch with updates in the coming days, if forecasts warrant. In the meantime, please rest assured that we're taking every precaution to keep you or your loved one safe. Please continue to check our website or your community Facebook page for updates.
